History

Back in 1937 Fire Station 12 was located in a house and garage located at Tuckers Grove County Park.

This continued until after World War II, when in 1949 county fire crews were relocated to the property on the old Santa Barbara Marine Corps Air Station, which would eventually become the Santa Barbara Airport.

As time progressed, the old Marine Corps building became untenable and firefighters were housed temporarily and relocated to the now-demolished Pilot House Motel, which was located south of the terminal building at Santa Barbara Airport. A station was built off of Hollister Ave and the dual purpose of Engine Company 12 and Crash/Rescue 12 continued.

In 1996 a transition took place and the City of Santa Barbara would build the new Fire Station 8 to provide Aircraft Rescue and Fire Fighting (ARFF) service at the regional airport. To better serve the public through faster response times, the county moved Station 12 to the new location which has quicker access to the freeway and the City of Goleta and non-incorporated areas. The theme of Station 12 embraces the rich agricultural past of the Goleta Valley and even has a small orchard in the front yard.
